What is a quantifier?

Los quantifiers son palabras que se usan para indicar la cantidad de algo pero sin dar una cifra exacta.

Son ejemplos de quantifiers some (algo, algunos), much (mucho), many (muchos), few (pocos), etc.

Ex: There are many flowers in the garden.

Ex: We have much time to finish the task.

What is a quantifier?

Los quantifiers acompañan a un sustantivo, por lo que varían dependiendo del tipo de sustantivo al que acompañe, teniendo en cuenta si éste es contable o incontable.

No obstante, algunos quantifiers se pueden usar con ambos tipos.

For countable nouns	For uncountable nouns	For both
Many	Much	Some
A few	A little	Any
Few	Little	A lot of / Lots of

When do we use quantifiers?

Many / Much

Usamos many y much para indicar una cantidad grande. Usamos many con sustantivos contables y much con incontables.

Ex: Many companies are implementing the use of AI.

A few / a little

Usamos a few y a little para indicar una cantidad moderada. Usamos a few con sustantivos contables y a little con incontables.

Ex: A little time spent on social media can help you stay updated.

Few / Little

Usamos few y little para indicar una cantidad moderada. Usamos few con sustantivos contables y little con incontables.

Ex: Few people are aware of the privacy settings on different apps.

When do we use quantifiers?

Some

Usamos some con ambos tipos de sustantivos, normalmente en oraciones afirmativas, aunque se pueden usar en oraciones interrogativas en caso de ofrecimientos o si pedimos algo.

Ex: Some documents must be read before creating a profile online.

Any

Usamos any con ambos tipos de sustantivos, especialmente en oraciones negativas e interrogativas.

Ex: There aren't any new posts today.

A lot of / Lots of

Usamos a lot of o lots of con ambos tipos de sustantivos para indicar una cantidad muy grande.

Ex: A lot of users spend hours scrolling through online content every day.
